

LANDON'S BAY STATE WIN STARTLES DEMOCRATS

EXTRAORDINARY LANDSLIDE SURPRISES G. O. P. LEADERS

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Universal Service

Washington, April 30—Governor Landon's extraordinary victory in Massachusetts was today the outstanding topic among the national political leaders in Washington.

The Republican leaders were astonished and most of them gratified by the high favor in which the Kansas governor was shown to be held by the voters in the first test of his strength in the industrial East.

The Democratic leaders frankly manifested grave interest. Up to this time, they had pretended to regard Governor Landon as "just another candidate."

Sweeping Scope
A few plain statistics demonstrate the sweeping scope of Governor Landon's astounding achievement in the Bay State.

Landon received 80 per cent of the votes of all the Republican voters who went to the polls.

He outdistanced his nearest competitor, Hoover, by more than 10 to 1.

He received nearly five times as many votes as Senator Borah, Senator Vandenberg and Colonel Knox combined.

In some precincts of Boston, which gave Democratic by more than 10,000, Landon received, as many votes as President Roosevelt.

First Real Test
The Massachusetts primary afforded a singularly accurate test of the relative strength of all the Republicans who have been mentioned for the presidential nomination. The name of none of them appeared on the ballot.

The voters were left free to write the name of the candidate they preferred to see nominated. Eight out of every ten voters in the Republican primaries deliberately wrote in the name of the Kansas governor.

There was but one contest of any significance in the Bay State. National Committeeman John H. Richards, who was suspected of favoring Hoover, was defeated for election as a district delegate to Cleveland by two young men who publicly announced their support of Landon.

Roosevelt was unopposed in Massachusetts. In Pennsylvania, about 60,000 Democratic votes were cast for Colonel Henry Breckinridge as against more than 700,000 for Mr. Roosevelt. Several thousand Pennsylvanians wrote in the name of Governor Landon. Mr. Borah was the only name on the ballot. He received about 500,000 preference votes.

Divide With Borah
It is estimated that Landon will receive all of the Bay state's 33 delegates and that he and Senator Borah will divide the 75 from Pennsylvania.

The most astute observers in Washington were in agreement to-day that the Massachusetts victory was the beginning of the enormous ground swell of public sentiment that will result in the nomination of Landon on an early ballot at Cleveland.

Other significant developments are in immediate prospect. Florida Republicans will hold their state convention at Orlando today and they are expected to elect all 12 delegates favorable to Landon. They may adopt a resolution in support of him during the convention.

California is expected to announce its overwhelming victory for the Kansas governor in its primaries next Tuesday. On the same day Tennessee Republicans in state convention at Nashville will pledge their delegates to Governor Landon.

New Jersey Next
Under the impulse of the Massachusetts victory New Jersey is also expected to vote an overwhelming regard for Landon in its primaries on May 19.

In western states more than 125 delegates already elected have been inducted to vote for Landon in the first bark of the gun in the national convention.

It is estimated that nearly a majority of the convention will have been decisively instructed for him the first ballot is taken.

Massachusetts Sweep Proves No "Pipe-Dream" for Alf Landon

Alf Landon's dream of capturing the industrial East today seemed nearer the realm of reality as Massachusetts piled up an 11-to-1 lead for the Kansas governor. Here's the "Cauldride of the West," in the humble home which the mid-west state provides its governor. In a comfortable chair by the fireplace "Alf" puffs away contentedly, cheered by the tribute of the Bay state, a sweep which foes said he had "but a pipe-dream of capturing."

Bosco, Brennan Elected Delegates

A re-check in the election returns of candidates in Boston for delegates to the Democratic state convention revealed today that Joseph Rosen, Ward 1, and John A. Brennan, Ward 22, had been elected. The first returns had Edward D. Hickey elected in Ward 1 and Robert McGovern in Ward 22.

U. S. SWING TO LANDON

ing their choices within a fortnight or so.

It is believed that the Hoover vote here—only 7214 votes as against the 76,710 received by Governor Landon—will not be enough to react against the former President when California votes next Tuesday.

Landon supporters are also extremely hopeful that they can send a delegation to the Republican national convention from the Kansas Governor.

They think that the voters will recognize that the Hoover sun has set—had set four years ago.

New Jersey, which votes on May 19, is almost certain to be captured for the Landon movement in the face of Massachusetts' vote. It is believed, should California go strongly for Landon, the Kansas would have an important nucleus of delegates on the first convention ballot.

UNITE EAST AND WEST
In western states about 125 delegates have already been pledged to him, and a union of the West with the East is what Massachusetts' primaries have all but accomplished, supporters of Governor Landon state.

Already the term "Cauldride of the West" is being generally applied to Governor Landon.

The most remarkable part of it all—besides in this state—is that Governor Landon himself has made no tour to capture votes as did Senators Borah and Dickinson and Colonel Knox, other contenders for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Knox and Dickinson came to Massachusetts to garner votes. Senator Borah and his many previous appearances here, their showings on Tuesday were even more discouraging to their aspirations than was Hoover's.

Borah got only 436 ballots; Knox 1910; Dickinson's total was negligible.

From Washington came expressions of surprise from Republican leaders at the extent of Governor Landon's popularity here while his opponents were jubilant at the possibilities opened by the eighth mandate delivered by the voters of Massachusetts.

That mandate was also being considered most eagerly by the delegates chosen to represent Massachusetts at the Republican national convention.

The great majority of Massachusetts delegates ran unopposed and were reported as positive in their support of the presidential nominee.

The outspoken reputation of Republican National Committeeman John Richardson of Canton—who imported and failed to expose the Landon cause because he was an intimate of Hoover—showed the popular feeling on the subject.

Richardson and his running mate, George L. Barnes of Westmouth, went down to defeat for delegates in the 33rd Congressional district.

The significance of their defeat by a wide margin lies in the fact that Richardson, a Republican Representative from the district, and Charles W. Hodges of Quincy, and George C. Olson of Brockton, had both espoused Landon's cause openly.

MAY LOSE G. O. P. POST
Congressman Martin, who although admittedly in a receptive mood, has made no formal statement on his candidacy. At Washington to-day he said:

"It will be for the delegation to decide who is the best man for the job."

Congressman Martin, who was

Landon's Triumph

THE overwhelming vote by which Governor Landon swept the Republican presidential preference primary in Massachusetts leaves no room for doubt that he is THE POPULAR CHOICE OF THE REPUBLICANS OF THE NATION.

With Missouri in the Middle-West instructing its delegates-at-large for the Kansas governor a few days ago, and now with Massachusetts in New England showing so decided a preference for him, it is evident that the movement for his nomination is NOT confined to any particular section of the country.

His vote on practically complete returns is ten times that of his nearest competitor, ex-President Hoover, and four times that of the combined vote of Mr. Hoover, Senators Borah and Vandenberg, and Colonel Knox.

The steadfast refusal of Governor Landon to push himself in the pre-convention primaries, and his obvious sincerity in wishing the rank and file of his party to express their preference freely, are being vindicated as state after state has chosen delegates favorable to his nomination.

It is a NATION-WIDE and SPONTANEOUS turning to the man who, above all others, is the antithesis of the caricature of sane government which we are now witnessing in Washington.

Helected delegates-at-large to the convention, was frankly overjoyed at the tremendous popular reaction to the Landon candidacy.

He believes the Kansas Governor is the strongest man in the Republican party and the outstanding man in the nation to defeat President Roosevelt and the Raw Deal.

He also has no doubt that the Massachusetts delegation to the national convention, although unpledged, will swing directly to the Landon ticket.

18 DELEGATE VOTES
His showing in Massachusetts obviously came from the rank and file of the people, Congressmen Martin declared.

"With that virtual mandate, I imagine that he will have from 25 to 30 of the State's 33 delegates with him from the very beginning."

Before the primary, Landon's most ardent supporters estimated a maximum of 25 delegates would be elected favorable to the Landon candidacy in the State delegation.

In Washington, the result in Massachusetts and in Pennsylvania, where voters also accorded him the honor of writing his name on the ballot although he was not a candidate, was viewed generally in only one light.

This was that his appeal to the people is much greater than had been realized, and that he will be increasingly difficult to block his path to the nomination at the Cleveland convention.

The stop-Landon group headed by friends of Senator Borah, admitted frankly that his suddenly-revealed satiation, was not unexpected by them.

Hoover Support In Ward 4 Fades

While supporters of former President Hoover expressed pleasure over the preferential ballot given him in Ward 4, Boston, cold analysis shows they have little cause for comfort.

It was brought out that in this ward the former President received more votes than in any other in Boston.

It was also shown that, with one exception, more votes were cast for Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas in that ward than in any other in Boston.

It is true that former President Hoover received 122 votes. It is equally true Governor Landon received 1220. Exactly 10 to one.

CAPITAL CHIEFS AMAZED AT BIG LANDON VOTE

Washington, April 30 (U.S.)—Democrats joined with Republicans today in expressing amazement at the strength of Governor Alf Landon of Kansas in the Massachusetts Republican presidential primaries.

Surprisingly, nationally known Democrats praised Landon's record and expressed belief he will be the Republican presidential candidate.

Senator Lewis (D., of Illinois, said):

"Landon's sweeping victory in Massachusetts is the first evidence that I have seen in my long experience in public office that Eastern Republicans are willing to support a distinctly Western candidate for the presidency. It is a good omen for the country when Massachusetts shows that liberality of thought. Landon is a Western man in every characteristic."

HAPPY OVER BIG VOTE
Senator Barbour (R., of New Jersey):

"I am glad to see this big Republican vote in the primaries in Massachusetts and I am not surprised at Landon's victory."

Representative Austin (D., of Vermont):

"Landon made a remarkable showing in Massachusetts. His success is only 'typical' of the Kansas strength in other states. Republican presidential candidates, said, declaring:

"CAN THEM ROOSEVELT?"
"Without a doubt Landon will be nominated for the presidency in Cleveland. He will be nominated not later than the fifth ballot. His victory this week is critical, what will happen in all states that have no favorite name as candidates is uncertain."

"I am for anyone who can trim Roosevelt and Landon is the man who can do it."

Representative Martin (R., of Massachusetts):

"Landon's victory is an undeniable indication of his great strength with the people. A Massachusetts Democrat, Representative Austin (D., of Vermont), said, declaring:

"Landon's victory was not surprising. He seems to be the best Republican available for the presidential race."

DRAPER

WIFEPLANS RETURN FROM LONDON

Over the transatlantic telephone, former State Senator Eben S. Draper talked today with his wife, missing mysteriously from April 18 until yesterday and declared to have been a stowaway aboard the liner Georgic.

In the trans-oceanic conversation, revealed by Draper's counsel, Charles B. Barnes, Jr., Mrs. Draper, in London, told her husband in New York that she would return on the same liner.

She is understood to be stopping in an exclusive hotel in the Mayfair district of London with Mrs. Francis Maurice Glynn, the former Jane Perkins of Seattle, which also is Mrs. Draper's former home town. Draper left for New York last night, according to his secretary in Honolulu, to begin arrangements for the speedy return of his wife.

Until the news from London that she had been found, arrived yesterday, Mrs. Draper, the former Hazel M. Archibald of Seattle, Wash., had been missing since April 18, when she vanished from a sanitarium at Katonah, N. Y.

To Meet Ship

Draper's secretary said the mill owner was not planning to go to London to be reunited with his wife although there were reports to that effect after she had been located. He said that after arrangements had been completed for her return here as soon as possible, his employer would probably meet the ship on which she was arriving.

He added that officials in London would be urged to use every consideration for Mrs. Draper, in view of her condition, believed to be responsible for her disappearance.

She has been under treatment since last fall for mental trouble which developed after a serious operation.

Draper was overjoyed at reports she was alive and well, his secretary reported, and was also greatly relieved that his faith that she had not committed suicide was justified.

Clung to Belief

He clung to this belief despite instances from some quarters that she had taken her life after it was reported a woman, resembling Mrs. Draper, had disappeared after being seen aboard the liner Georgic on route to Europe from New York.

Mrs. Draper made her first appearance yesterday, according to officers of the Georgic when they arrived in London. After boarding the vessel at New York, she had managed to conceal herself in the tank room and apparently remained there throughout the voyage.

ELAINE BARRIE

JOHN BARRYMORE

If you hear a lot of noise from a show apartment, don't decide there is a fight. You may be wrong. From Hollywood comes the story concerning reports of a fight last summer between John Barrymore and Elaine Barrie, Pawah! According to wire it was no fight at all. John and Elaine were just rehearsing for an O'Neill play.

Hollywood, April 30.—Remember that noisy New York fight between John Barrymore and Elaine Barrie that preceded his flight and her pursuit across the continent last summer? Well, sir, it wasn't a fight at all—it was just a rehearsal!

John and Elaine came up with this belated explanation today, Mr. Ripley.

The night was warm. All the windows in the Barrie apartment were open and all the tenants had their cars parked.

Elaine wanted to rehearse a scene from Eugene O'Neill's play, "Welded," in expectation of an audition the next morning. This play has some very turbulent scenes and language and so about an actress and a playwright who are always squabbling.

"I have to fight," screamed Elaine, following script, "why can't you understand and be generous—be just?"

More of this, in much stronger language. The car-parked neighbors rushed for phones to call the police and report a jam between the Callahan and Aris.

"So that's the story," said John and Elaine. "It really wasn't a quarrel at all."

Whether the rehearsal turned out so badly that Barrymore fled was a subject not touched upon.

NEWTON PAIR
BRING SUIT

Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Quinn don't want to be unfriendly about it, but this business of golf balls crashing through their dining room window while they are eating Sunday dinner must stop.

Furthermore, the annoying loud "thwack" of a ball slapping the walls of the house at the crack of dawn, or the "rat-a-tat" of a high pitch rolling down over every third shingle of the roof, can't go on.

That, in substance, is their plaint in a temporary injunction obtained for them by Attorney Dennis M. O'Connell against Percy Quinn and his wife, Marguerite, owners of the Albemarle (line) Golf Club of Newtonville.

The matter revolves about the second hole, a dogleg, and digs deeply into human nature—at least a golfers human nature.

The fairway on the second makes a right angle turn to the left, property of the Quinns, who live in Kensington street, Newtonville.

Golfers have learned that a shot well-played over the Quinn domain will plop on or near the green and save a stroke.

Of course if the ball is topped, or sliced or "toed."

But golfers do top and slice and "toe," and the result, according to the spokesmen for the Quinns, is a careless bombardment of golf balls, resulting in broken windows, broken sleep and broken peace.

The Woodworths have pleaded the restraint to the extent of straightening out the dogleg on the golfers' game, a thing by aiming over the Quinn estate.

The case will be argued in East Cambridge court tomorrow.

The Quinns ask that the acts of trespassing be enjoined and that the nuisance abated and that damages for the past year be assessed.

Tryka had a scratch on one leg. Clark, a car on one hand. Police said the damage outside the wrecked car, was $700 and lodged a complaint of reckless driving against Tyler.

ROOSEVELT BID FOR 6,000,000 NEW VOTES

Washington, April 30 (INS)—Nearly two months in advance of the convening of the Democratic convention, President Roosevelt's platform today stood virtually complete.

Between now and November, in a series of speaking tours, the President will hammer home to the voters a four-point program as the basis of his bid for another term in the White House.

Without waiting to see who the Republicans nominate to oppose him, or which issue the G. O. P. platform will stress, Mr. Roosevelt has committed himself to the following:

1. A further increase in prices both of manufactured goods and agricultural products, through controlled inflation which will contain "a reasonably stable and constant price level."

2. Continued federal regulation of farm production.

3. A pledge that the administration will move to reduce working hours at the same time maintain the wage levels, if industry fails to take the step voluntarily.

4. Continued federal spending for unemployment relief so long as the necessity exists.

In carrying this formula to the electorate, those closest to him say, Mr. Roosevelt will concentrate on two immediate objectives.

First, he will seek to convince the farmer and the city man their problems are mutual and interdependent.

Second, he will press for support of the six to seven million new voters who have come of age since 1922.

The President already has outlined his re-election platform fairly comprehensively in the four major speeches he has made since last November, at Atlantic City, Chicago, Baltimore and New York.

In all four addresses he stressed the need for greater purchasing power, and argued that the struggle and the equity man must walk hand in hand if both are to survive.

He promised more cash in the working man's pay envelope. Finally he asserted government funds would continue to be pumped into unemployment relief so long as needed.

Zioncheck Bride Expects To Curb Her Bad Boy

HE CAN DRINK BEER ONLY, SHE RULES

Washington, April 30 (US)—He fell in love with her voice over the telephone but it was she who got his number.

At least, that's how it appeared when Congress playboy, Representative Marion A. Zioncheck (D.), of the State of Washington realized he had a wife and that she intended to reform him.

Zioncheck's bride of Tuesday, tall and pale-haired Ruby Louise Nix, 21, who came from Texas, said she had a public works administration secretary in Washington, said her chief job from now on would be to keep her husband out of trouble.

First of all, Ruby said she doesn't approve of his banking for a 70-million-hour speed such as placed him in jail last week and resulted in a $45 fine.

And while he can drink beer, she said, he can drink hard liquor only occasionally.

She doesn't exactly want to be the boss of the family, but she said, there was one thing they must agree upon and that is—

"Zioncheck, who first got into trouble by buying up the telephone wires on a switchboard of a large apartment-house building here New York's morning had reporters in mental tanglers for a while affirming and denying his marriage."

Informed that an Annapolis minister, the Rev. Paul R. Dehl had confirmed the wedding report, the representative said:

"This all reminds me that there is a communion in the ocean and the ocean is full of communion."

Finally, after absenting himself all day from his office, Zioncheck appeared at the Capitol with his bride.

Again he emphatically denied he had become a benedict.

The representative took his seat in the House while his bride sat in the gallery and gazed with admiration at Zioncheck. She said: "Isn't he the most wonderful man? I'm just thrilled to pieces to be married to him. Just think! Now I'm Mrs. Zioncheck! Isn't that grand?"

Representative Marion A. Zioncheck set a new style in honeymooning when he took his bride, the former Miss Ruby Nix, Public Works Administration clerk, right home to Washington after they had been married in Annapolis, Md. The newlyweds, once they reached the Zioncheck home, went in for a good fast game of ping-pong.

PROCESSTAX PROPOSED BY MORGENTHAU

Washington, April 30 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau warned the Senate finance committee today that the $80,000,000 tax bill fell short of providing the revenue asked by President Roosevelt and urged reconsideration of the administration's proposal for temporary processing taxes.

Appearing as the first witness as the committee opened hearings on the bill passed yesterday by a 97 to 52 House vote, Morgenthau said federal credit depended upon scrupulous adherence to an orderly program looking to a balance of the federal budget just soon as the needs and abilities of our people make that possible and thereafter upon a steady reduction in the public debt.

It was Morgenthau's first appearance on the controversial tax program which has been assailed by Republicans and some speakers at the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as offering a blow to re-employment and business recovery.

President Roosevelt's suggestion for temporary processing taxes did not even have a committee approval in the House.

Morgenthau, turning to the President's proposal for imposing duties on a basis of percentages of undistributed income, said it was a controversy over the tax measure, said it was merely an extension of the principle of "taxation according to ability to pay," which he said had "the unadvised and unquestioned endorsement and support of the citizens of this nation."

The Treasury secretary, for the first time, however, disclosed that this new corporate plan, estimated to yield $620,000,000 annually in permanent revenue, would raise only $310,000,000 for the first fiscal year.

Income tax delay.

"It must be recognized," he said, "that the choice of an income tax as the means for raising additional revenue necessarily involves a delay in realization of increased receipts."

"Receipts from taxes on corporate incomes for the calendar year 1936 will be collected in the main during the calendar year 1937 and will be divided between the two fiscal years, the fiscal year 1937, ending June 30, 1937 and the fiscal year 1938."

She denied finally that she had made a definite announcement of her marriage to Kingsley. She added:

"If it were we could not announce it until the 30 days after my annulment was up. I now find that will be May 4. And I have never made a definite statement concerning it to anybody."

In spite of all this confusion, there was no doubt that the romance was red hot. Broadway watched and wondered.

When Miss Dudley appeared in Boston, Kingsley came here to attend the opening performance. At the time he was quoted as saying: "Certainly I came to Boston to see Miss Dudley play. I think she's pretty nice. You can say anything you like about Miss Dudley and me, within reason."

Japan Sees Naval Need $168,000,000

Tokyo, April 30 (INS)—On the eve of tomorrow's extraordinary session of the Japanese Diet, the Tokyo press today predicted a Japanese naval budget exceeding $168,000,000 (more than $168,000,000) for 1936-37.

Analysts predicted the naval budget for 1937-38 would exceed $200,000,000. They also looked forward to formation of key points in Japan's Pacific islands in the Japanese navy's budget that the 10-year status quo in the Pacific will be broken early in the "next war."

Life Term Impends for Killer of Two

Kingsley, April 30 (AP)—Life imprisonment threatened Gottfried Stettler, 25-year-old chauffeur of the late Louis Sobel, for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Barbor, an elderly couple.

Stettler was accused of having beaten the Barbors to death when caught robbing their apartment. The prosecution charged he wired a clock to a heater and set fire to the place.

WATCH CURLEY IN TRIPLE RACE

Interest in the course of Governor Curley, which may eventually settle the three-cornered race of a trio of state officers for the gubernatorial candidacy, overshadowed all else today in Democratic circles.

The hint dropped by the governor at a banquet in Worcester Tuesday night, was generally interpreted as meaning he might drop his plans to run for the United States Senate and seek re-election.

Democratic leaders admitted this would settle the present triple struggle between State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, Lieutenant-Governor Joseph L. Hurley and Attorney-General Paul Dever.

State Treasurer Hurley, however, has indicated he will be content to run for re-election in 1938, or without the sanction of the state pre-primary convention.

Pape, Grid Star, Killed by Bandit

Albuquerque, N. M., April 30 (AP)—State Highway Patrolman Olan H. Pape—former University of Iowa football star who proved as heroic in a gun battle as he was on the gridiron—was killed today by a bandit he killed.

The "tall, thin runner" of the Hawkeyes eleven died after an operation and a blood transfusion a few hours after he slew Rocco R. Barton, 22, in a hand-to-hand fight.

Pape provided Iowa football fans with two of their biggest thrills: A hard-hitting halfback, he broke around end for a 67-yard touchdown run in the Iowa-Minnesota homecoming game of 1928, after the Gophers had held a touchdown lead most of the game, Irving Nelson kicked the point for an Iowa 7 to 6 victory.

The next year Pape circled end in the last two minutes for the touchdown which gave Iowa a 9 to 7 victory over Minnesota.

Bacon Wants WPA Jobs 'Bi-Partisan'

Washington, April 30 (INS)—Complete reorganization of relief activities on a bi-partisan, non-partisan basis was proposed today by Rep. Bacon (R.) of New York as committee approval of a $1,000,000 Works Progress Administration fund was forecast.

The plan was laid before the appropriations sub-committee considering the forthcoming deficiency bill.

left a suicide note, while another group vehemently asserted she had not.

Early today, Miss Dudley was sufficiently recovered to talk to a reporter who gained admission to her hospital room.

"I was just trying to kill myself, that's ridiculous," she explained. "We did not have any quarrel. As a matter of fact, we had been very affectionate all day."

"I'm all broken up over this thing. You know, I have a better and this report that I tried to commit suicide will give me a pretty terrible lot for both of us."

As the young ingenue of "2nd of Summer," starring Ina Claire, explained it, she had been carrying one of Kingsley's large guns from the bedroom into the living room of the playwright's apartment.

One of the guns, a .22 calibre rifle, fell out of its canvas case and as Miss Dudley clutched at it, it was discharged.

"The actress, struck in the left side of the chest, fell to the floor unconscious, where she was found a moment later by Kingsley."

BROADWAY WONDERED

All Broadway knew the romance between Miss Dudley and Kingsley. But whether or not they had actually been married was a question which gave columnists gray hairs and baffled even intimate friends.

Today, however, it has been definitely established that the couple were not.

Just why, nobody ever found out. Marriage was in the air. When, six months ago, the volatile daughter of Doris Dudley, radio commentator, went to get her annulment papers, Kingsley appeared with her, the very picture of devotion.

Doris had married Theodore Kurrin, a musician, when she was only 14 and gave birth to a son. Not so long after the annulment, Doris told Louis Sobel, Evening Journal Broadway columnist:

"Yes, Sidney and I were married. The exact date? Well, it might have been February 15."

This seemed definite enough. Later Sobel met Kingsley on the west coast. To the columnist's amazement, he found that Miss Dudley's statement was true to the playwright. Kingsley looked at him blankly and said:

"We're not married. There's nothing to it."

"We're not married. There's nothing to it."

"We're not married. There's nothing to it."

"We're not married. There's nothing to it."

NATIVES FLEE AS ITALIANS SWEEP NEAR ADDIS ABABA

whereabouts of the Emperor had been a mystery to the public.

After talking to Mr. Engert, the emperor received the Associated Press correspondent and declared: "Ethiopia is not defeated. It will carry on its fight to the last man."

Order will be maintained in the capital, until the Italians arrive, by Mayor Rukia Teklela Woldemariam with 10,000 policemen.

One source in the diplomatic corps stated that Woldemariam had been assured he would be free to join the Ethiopian army, once the capital falls.

The Northern Italian army marching in from Dessay, was reported advancing without encountering any resistance.

The advance guard, only 60 miles away today, was expected to reach Addis Ababa by tomorrow.

High government officials were leaving the capital.

The British ambulance unit which returned to the capital and reported the Italian advance on Debra Birhan, was understood to be going into the interior, either accompanying Ethiopian government officials or joining other units which had already left in a search for Emperor Haile Selassie.

The front ranks of the advancing Italians were believed to number 200, with 700 men following.

The Italian advance guard, members of the British ambulance unit, and already taken there during their drive on the east of Emperor Haile Selassie's government.

AIRPORT BOMBARD

Before the native evacuation of the capital started, a squadron of Italian airplanes descended on the Akaki airfield, on the outskirts of the city, and machine-gunned the Ethiopian hangars. The hangars were empty.

The British legion, to which Americans in the capital were for protection, is in the hills on the eastern outskirts of the city and has elaborate underground protection.

The American legion, on a hillside on the opposite side of the city from the other legations, is dangerously close to the post offices and the three Ethiopian radio stations.

30 AMERICANS THERE

About 30 Americans remain in Addis Ababa, most of them missionaries. Many decided some time ago to leave.

'SMILEY' WILL GET YOU---WATCH OUT, GIRLS

Plenty of smiles here for "Smiley." He will be out rain or shine today. Look for him. These girls saw him yesterday.

"Smiley" Rings More Smiles

By SMILEY

(The Big-Hearted Photographer)

Under no circumstances do I tell me, I have not got something,

because I made a personal appeal yesterday for two nice girls to come to and pose themselves into a couple of nice dresses and one comes in today—so I score 200 per cent.

This is one of two girls I snapped at the Red Sox-Yankee game in Fenway Park last Sunday when people were wondering who was that good-looking photographer snapping pictures at the crowd in the stands.

She is Miss Vera Mattson, 26, of 11 Johnson court, Norwood, where she is a hairdresser at another address in the town and she said she knew it was her picture in

Monday's Boston Evening American but didn't have time to come in until two days later for her new dress.

I would like to dedicate such a thought to my wife, who never yet has delayed in getting a dress except when it was from the closet and I was waiting for her down in town.

Well, this makes only one smiling girl missing so far, because you can't count a mile in the two appearing in yesterday's paper on account of it is so early.

One that was in yesterday's smiling girls groups gave me a bad moment with a line—no bad

blondies do not always give me bad moments at times—but this was a bad moment which came when the Smiley secretary told me that the girl who came in was named Helen

Sullivan and was a beautiful blonde.

The shock I got is because I have a beautiful blonde sister-in-law named Helen Sullivan and I surmised her beautiful blonde sister, who was at one time on the stage and I think it was in "The Black Crook." I am much younger than her, of course, and many people have remarked that they thought I was her son.

(Editor's Note: Seeing the two together, you could think he was her grandfather.)

Win Dresses

This shock came because I figured: "What am I doing taking a picture with my own sister-in-law in it and not recognizing her?

This is terrible!

But it proved to be another entirely: Miss Helen Sullivan of 12 works in a Boston department store, and I think it is a close resemblance to the pretty girl smiling

"Smiley" hopped into the Fenway to find smiling girls. He found plenty of them. "Smiley" will be out again today. Watch for him. Smile for him. Then you may win one of those I. J. Fox Company's "Stardom" dresses. If you are ringed, as two smiling girls are today, bring in the picture. Identify yourself. A dress order will be handed you.

SOVIETS WARN OF 'WORLD WAR'

Moscow, April 30 (AP)—Soviet Russia, annual May Day proclamation warned today of a possibility of a new world war and declared the Communist army was ready to repulse "any attempt by the enemy to attack our country of socialism."

The proclamation, customarily released the day before the international "labor day," was issued by Klementi E. Voroshilov, Soviet war commissar. The Soviet army will pass in review tomorrow before Dictator Joseph Stalin in Red square.

MAYOR REFUSES PLEA FOR 100 MORE POLICE

Mayor Mansfield today turned down Commissioner McWherry's request for appointment of 100 new policemen.

"The city cannot afford it," was his answer.

In a compromise move, agreed upon during a five-hour conference of the mayor and the commissioner at City Hall, 77 policemen now on special department details will be re-assigned.

These include 40 of the 52 at present assigned to municipal departments, 20 doing criminal work, five employed in the police repair shop and two on telephone switchboards.

POINTS YET UNSETTLED

The conference began shortly after 6 o'clock in the mayor's office. At its conclusion, Mayor Mansfield announced that every item in the police budget had been carefully considered and that only minor points remained to be adjusted.

He said the most important topic discussed was the necessity of filling existing vacancies and the ability of the city to afford such replacements at the present time.

The mayor said the commissioner pointed out that no men had been appointed for five years and that resignations, deaths and dismissals had, during that period, reduced the number of policemen by 200.

BAYS ECONOMY NEEDED

He said that he and the commissioner were in accord in their desire that the people be given proper police protection but that he is, at the same time, aware of the necessity of not increasing the burden upon the taxpayer.

The mayor said it is necessary to economize in order to keep the tax rate "within reasonable limits" and that he could not consent to increasing the number of policemen at this time.

Woman Arrested On Girl's Charges

On a Federal court warrant charging conspiracy to violate the Mann Act in transporting a minor from New Jersey to Massachusetts, Mrs. Lillian E. Schreiner, also known as Marie Shepard of Roxbury, was arrested today by Boston police.

She was arraigned in Federal court on a bench warrant issued by Judge Hugh D. McCallan.

The case, according to federal officials, involves a 15-year-old girl who was arrested in Newton juvenile court three months ago who made allegations which brought about the arrest of a Newton man. The girl is said to have claimed she was lured from Passaic, N. J.

Eli Perry Ends 48 Years in Customs

After 48 years of service in the government, Eli Perry, assistant collector for the port of Boston, retired today.

Perry, who is 74, joined the custom service as a clerk in June, 1888. He was later appointed deputy collector, and in April, 1923, he was promoted to his present position. He will be succeeded by Owen H. McKenna, supervisor of customs agents.

12,184,000 JOBLESS, A. F. L. ESTIMATES

Washington, April 30 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor estimated today that the country will have 12,184,000 unemployed when business reaches its 1929 level.

After estimating the number of jobs lost month at 12,184,000 the federation said in its unemployment survey.

"When business reached its lowest depression point in March, 1933, 13,520,000 of those who had jobs in 1929 had been laid off and business had fallen 47 per cent below normal, according to the Annual Index.

"With 72 per cent of the business now regained, we should have found work for 72 per cent of the depression unemployed if we expect to restore employment by the time business again reaches normal."

"That is, we should have re-employed 9,680,000, actually we have re-employed only 3,500,000."

The survey said that "little progress has been made toward re-employment in the first quarter of 1936, with 300,000 getting jobs from January to March. The federation blamed lengthened work hours.

The first of his 16 points called for condemnation, "without qualification and in the strongest language in the found, of the basic philosophy of the New Deal."

Another plank called for the turning back to local communities, without federal assistance, of the administration of relief.

Taft accused the present administration of failing to fulfill a promise to reduce the tariff, except in minor cases, with reciprocal treaties, affecting an infinitely small amount of goods."

Concord, N. H., April 30 (AP)—Robert A. Taft, Ohio's "favorite son" candidate for the Republican nomination for President, advanced today a 16-point platform based on stabilization of the currency, a balanced budget, and a hand-off policy for business.

His address was prepared for delivery before the Women's Republican Club of New Hampshire.

The first of his 16 points called for condemnation, "without qualification and in the strongest language in the found, of the basic philosophy of the New Deal."

Another plank called for the turning back to local communities, without federal assistance, of the administration of relief.

BIG CITY COAL FRAUD EXPOSE PROMISED

Formal investigation was begun by the Boston Finance Commission today into what Chairman E. M. Sullivan termed "one of the worst scandals in the history of Boston."

Thousands of dollars have been misused from the city through fraudulent coal deliveries to public buildings, he charged.

Twice within the last 24 hours, he said, coal companies, warned that the Finance Commission had ordered analyses of coal in municipal coal bins, have been blacked out attempting to remove coal already delivered and substitute new loads.

The Finance Commission met today in a special and secret session to determine its program in the matter. Just before the doors were closed, Chairman Sullivan said:

"We believe that the coal delivered to public buildings in many sections is below size of contract specifications and that, in many instances, it is practically 'fire-proof.'"

"NOT BOHEMY"

"Somebody in the inside is conspiring efforts to cheat the city."

"And I want to tell the people of Boston that I do not mean D. M. Boherty, superintendent of supplies, who is co-operating with the Finance Commission in every way possible."

Chairman Sullivan said that the Wilmington coal delivery substitution was at the municipal building at Vine and Dudley streets, Roxbury, and at the L-street bathhouse, he said.

"Engineers in these buildings had been warned by the finance commission and the attempts were prevented."

CITES SHORT WEIGHT

One complaint, Sullivan charged, was convicted in Superior Court of delivering an order for 200 pounds of coal and the delivery proved 170 pounds short.

"This offense could have been known to city officials," Sullivan remarked. "The conditions existing in the welfare coal investigation, I am confident, will show the importance compared to this latest grab."

A preliminary report of the finance commission's charges, was in the hands of Mayor Mansfield, he said, by the welfare coal investigation grew out of charges by Councilor Henry Selvitella.

The Hague, Netherlands, April 30 (AP)—Princess Juliana observed her 25th birthday anniversary today with all the normal Netherlands customs.

When and if the plump, 24-year-old princess returns to the throne, she would marry.

The people made no secret in public of their desire to see Juliana in a married life.

Princess Juliana was the wish for a royal wedding.

Where to find a suitable prince, however, to share the throne of the island of Orange-Nassau remained a difficult question.

There were rumors as early as 1929 that Juliana was to marry Prince Wilhelm of Barch-Schwarzburg. Prince Sigvard of Sweden then came to attention as a possible royal husband, but he married a German commoner.

Most extravagant of all the marriage rumors has been that linking her with King Edward of England. The Netherlands constitution prohibits marriage of the queen to a foreign sovereign or his heir apparent, and the queen may live only in her own country.

Juliana could only marry King Edward, therefore, at the sacrifice of her rights to the throne.

HEARST APPEAL FILED IN CAPITAL

WILL STRIP PROBE POWERS

Washington, April 30 (US)—Declaring constitutional rights of citizens are being flouted, William Randolph Hearst appealed to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals yesterday to halt the unlawful seizure of private telegrams by the Black committee of the Senate.

He asked the appeals court to assume jurisdiction over the Black Committee which the district supreme court had refused to do.

Through his Attorney, Eliza Hanson, the publisher insisted the first Senate committee, the in-qualified committee be "stripped of their official or representative character and subjected in its persons to the consequences of their individual conduct."

TWO OTHER STEPS

Mr. Hearst took two other steps to halt the wholesale rifling of private papers under discreet subpoenas. These were:

1—Filed opposition to the motion of the federal communication commission to discontinue the bill of complaint as to it. The commission admitted that the telegraph seizures, but promised it would discontinue the practice.

2—Noted a general appeal from the refusal of Chief Justice Hughes in district Supreme Court to issue permanent injunctions.

The court of appeals ordered the district court to take jurisdiction, and the L-street bathhouse, he said.

"If this petitioner's constitutional rights are not to be violated in the same way in the future, the court should issue an injunction to restrain the members of the committee from making any further disclosures of petitioner's private papers and the documents which the committee illegally obtained through the connivance of members of the Federal Communications Commission."

REBUKES HOUSE

Illegal activities of the Black committee which were foisted in one court order on the House of Representatives, when they were rebuked by the House of Representatives, Hearst said, he declared:

"No matter how reprehensible or odious these acts may be, no matter what the injury resulting from them or threatened thereby, the effect of the decision is that the courts of this country have no power to restrain the members of a Senate committee."

The Senate committee is still proceeding with its investigation. It is in a position to make further use of the messages which it illegally obtained through the illegal acts of the Federal communication commission."

NO GENERAL POWER

Citing cases, the attorney asserted that neither branch of Congress has general power.

POLICE KILLER CONFESES

Chicago, April 30 (INS)—Al Borden, 31, early today confessed he shot and killed Police Sgt. Richard Rivers in Indianapolis.

"I didn't want to go to the pen, that's why," he said. Rivers was killed Monday night when Indianapolis police attempted to capture a bandit gang suspected of robbing a $20,000 jewelry store of $15,000.

A short time after Borden and a woman named "Margaret" were arrested here last night, police arrested three others and seized $5000 in jewelry and an arsenal.

Kidnaper Gets 50-Year Sentence

Allentown, Pa., April 30 (US)—On the basis of his 10-year-old victim's forthright witness stand story, the Commonwealth imposed a penitentiary sentence of from 25 to 50 years upon Richard D. Taylor, 42-year-old Akron, O., salesman who kidnapped Harry T. Koch, Jr. for a $20,000 ransom.

Another Field Winndel Case

Trenton, N. J., April 28 (AP)—Assistant District Attorney Francis Madden of Queens County, N. Y., announced today the arrest of Sol Marcus, 33, of Trenton, in connection with the Paul H. Wendel case.

Madden said Marcus was arrested on a fugitive warrant as an accessory to the Wendel kidnapping. Marcus was held without bail by police Judge Andrew DuBois.

Lieutenant James D. Louis of the Trenton police, who accompanied two Brooklyn detectives in the kidnapping, said Marcus delivered money "from someone in New Jersey" to those charged in Brooklyn, N. Y., with kidnapping Wendel.

The kidnapping delayed Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution for the Lindbergh baby kidnapping three days.

'Don't Turn 'Em Loose' Hits Parole Evils

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1938, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, April 30.—The amazing aggregation of paroled convicts who prey on society will be the subject of a movie drama to be produced by Sam Briskin.

More than that, it will be propaganda against the present system which permits a man of the John D. Barry type to escape from a life of crime and then go back to the streets with a clean conscience. The picture, "Don't Turn 'Em Loose," is a story of a man who, after being released from prison, goes back to the streets and finds that the system is still the same. Those of us who remember New York when the Hippodrome was the place to see the most famous actors are particularly interested to hear that Charles R. Rogers will produce a new show based on the Hippodrome. A few years ago Rogers planned to make such a picture for Paramount but it never materialized.

Now, since "Show Boat" and "The Great Ziegfeld" are definite successes, Charles R. Rogers is his Hippodrome idea. E. H. Burns, who was general director of the Hippodrome for years and years in the days of "Hip Hip Hooray," "Happy Days," and "Three Cheers," will travel to Hollywood to work with Garret Root, writer, and Ralph Murphy, director. How well we remember the very great Mr. Burns.

Rochester, N. Y., April 30 (AP)—Recruiting Sergeant Jesse O. Small was a bit disconcerted when he began getting inquiries to learn if Oklahoma, N. a Mexico and Arizona had been given back to the Indians.

He made a quick count of the stars of the flag on the Federal Building and found it had but 45 and apparently was of an issue manufactured prior to 1907, when Oklahoma was admitted to

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

MYSTERY IN THE PHARMACY—Ninety-nine years ago, a young Bostonian named Theodore Metcalf opened a drugstore at 39 Tremont street.

Later, above the drugstore, a young doctor had his office. He was Oliver Wendell Holmes—whom we remember best as the author of "The Autocrat at the Breakfast Table" and as the father of the recently retired Supreme Court Justice Holmes.

(We are gradually leading up to the big mystery of the present—and the following paragraph is most significant.)

One day when Dr. Holmes was discussing his early days, he said: "When I started in the practice of medicine, I would write a prescription upstairs, then the patient would take it down to Mr. Metcalf to compound—and he was as grateful for the smallest favor as I was for the smallest fever."

Thus we have Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes writing prescriptions that were being filled by Metcalf—and just as Metcalf's Drug Store has endured through the years (it's now on Boylston street, you know), so one of those precious prescriptions was preserved by Mr. M. F. Lyons, the present owner of the Theodore Metcalf Co.

But now that prescription has vanished—leaving behind it not a trace, not a clue, not even a fingerprint!

By Robert E. Rogers

I have received the following invitation from Mr. W. Duncan Russell, executive director of the State Drama Project of the Works Progress Administration, at present administered by Mr. Paul Edwards:

"The Federal Drama Project of the Works Progress Administration is desirous of establishing in every community closer advisory cooperation between the members of the community and the drama groups operating within the community. To this end the Project wishes to establish an Associate Committee of citizens whose public interests might be of such nature as to be of value in an advisory capacity to the carrying out of the purposes of the drama program.

"The Federal Drama is designed to give relief rolls. Its general purpose is to establish high professional standards, to educate actors by assisting them to become self-supporting, to enable them to continue their training, and to educate the public in the appreciation of dramatic presentations through the development of high standards in the dramatic stage.

"The Federal Drama Project extends to you the invitation to identify yourself with such an Associate Committee. This identification would entail no obligation other than the assurance of sympathy with, and interest in, the purpose of the Project, and the presentation of helpful suggestions that may arise from that interest."

I am obliged to Mr. Russell for suggesting a name for such a purpose. But I will confess that I am in considerable doubt, not as to the value of this particular branch of the WPA, nor as to its possible usefulness, but as to its carrying out, but as to certain specific criticisms which have been made about it.

Project Most Useful To Amateur Actors
 It has been asserted that the State Drama Project has been rather more useful to ambitious amateurs with what might be called a smattering of drama background than to experienced people of the theater, to whom the theater is not so much an art or an inspiration toward better drama as a much-needed livelihood.

It has been asserted that the management of these projects, not so much in Boston, perhaps, as elsewhere, have been highbrow amateurs connected with colleges and little theater movements rather than with the professional theater, and that furthermore several of these people have their interest in the theater seriously entangled with ideas tending to the use of the theater as an instrument of propaganda under the aegis of the federal government, tending to the inculturation of ideas which are hardly less than Communistic.

Charges of Red Influence Made
 These charges have been made by many people, in some cases quite publicly, with reference to such people as Elmer Rice, Hallie Flanagan, Hiram Mohr and others. Questions have been asked in Congress about these people and their affiliations, and so far as I know no authoritative answers in defense of its policy have been offered by the administration. The history of the radical theater movement especially in New York would seem to indicate some tie up of that sort. These accusations that the administration has virtually sold out to a left-wing personnel in the conduct of the WPA writing and drama projects seem to me too serious to allow to pass unchallenged without a responsible defense.

I am perfectly willing to admit that the local state administration may not have fallen to these errors. It may be the local ideal one of pure entertainment of a popular sort, tried on by unemployed men and women of professional theater without social bias or prejudice.

But I am at present reluctant to commit myself to the encouragement and support of the WPA Drama Project until such time as some responsible official of high rank consents to a left-wing criticisms and so relieve the minds of many of us.

He is appearing currently at Levaggi's on Massachusetts avenue.

Mr. Downey was host to the three potential screen players at a luncheon at the Parker House, the latter having been sponsored by Mr. Downey's sponsors, who is rather doubling up on sponsorship.

But it was a delightful party and exceptionally thrilling for the girls.

They were placed at the head of the table where they were introduced to all the members of the theater, after which each was presented with a compact and a bouquet of perfume.

And there are many other similar affairs promised for the future.

The film, sponsored by the Boston theater, is expected to reach Boston early next week in time for presentation of both the State and Orpheum theaters. On Friday,

May 8, a definite announcement will be made immediately upon its arrival.

Altogether nearly 400 Boston boys and girls took part in the picture. It was a work for all of them, and even without the possibility of honors that are expected to come to some of the performers, it was well worth their time and effort. All of which seems to prove that beauty is more than screen deep!

CASCARELLA STARTS FOR RED SOX

AUSTEN LAKE

English as She Is Spoke on Diamond And Racetrack

WHAT LANGUAGE DO THEY SPEAK in the American sports world? English! All right, listen. The scene is in the Red Sox locker room, where the athletes are sorting their gear, honing pet bats, or being anointed with "Doc" Logan's savory unguents.

"I pick up your banana stalk yesterday," says Rick Ferrell to Roger Cramer, "and I don't even get a bleeder. All I do is a Baltimore chop on the payroll and then a can of corn when the chunker pulls the string."

"Yah! You hind snatchers are all the same," rejoins Cramer, belittlingly, "a bunch of fancy Dams and goal tenders. You had a fishin' trip every visit. Why, I been waiting for you to pour the pine since the poor farm and all you do are Sheeny Mikes and now and then a Chinese homer."

"Uh-huh," snorts Ferrell, "what about that blue dart Saturday?"

"The blind Tom calls it a long strike," sneers Cramer.

"Well I'm not a leg hitter like you," says Rick. "What with all those bases on stones and those clinkers. You must have seen the barrels."

"What was Wes throwing?" asks Logan, playing a light tattoo on Marcum's shoulder.

"Mostly No. 2's and now and then a nuthin' ball," explains Rick. "They were looking for that high hard one so they could button their shirts."

"Uncle Charley had 'em" grins Rick.

LOCKER ROOM PATOIS

JIBBERISH TO THE STRANGER, but simple, elemental Saxon to the ball player, who uses the jargon of his profession in preference to common phrasing. No sporting dictionary translates the ball player's lingo, but a literal translation of the foregoing conversation is contained in the following glossary:

Banana stalk—bat with poor wood; Bleeder—scratch single; Baltimore chop—batted ball that hits the plate and bounces high in the air; Pay ball—pitch with two strikes and three balls; Can of corn—high lazy fly; Chunker—pitcher; Pulls the string—slow ball; Hind snatcher—catcher; Fancy Dan—poser; Goal tender—patient waiter at the plate; Fishing trip—swinger at bad balls; Visit—time at bat; Pour the pine—a solid hit; Poor farm—training trip; Sheeny Mike—looming single over the infield; Chinese homer—strike out.

Blue dart—line drive; Blind Tom—umpire; Long strike—long foul; Leg hitter—fast runner who beats out infield rollers; Bases on stones—grounder that caroms off pebble; To see the barrels—to be lucky; No. 2 ball—curve; Nothing but—change of pace; High hard one—fast pitch; Unbutton the shirt—take a full swing; Uncle Charley's got you—weak on curve pitching.

PADDOCK LINGO

OR A TRACK TOUT MAY SIDLE up at Narragansett next Saturday, beg a match and begin as follows:

"Well I just crack down on a hot dog, a maiden fresh from the leaky roof. The office comes from a wise punter, who knows the gypsy and hears its dynamite. So I go for a bundle, figuring its a boat-race. We have a smart monkey up, whose just off the ground and the rest of the boys are cooks, herders and double-bugs. It looks easy."

"My hide gets in the four hole with the jock supposed to play iceman. The bag in the post position is a glenner, but his boy, being on the head-in, has him under double cover. We get a good break at the gate with our booster breezing to the chute, on the Bill Daley, see?"

"Well, I see we're getting the works pronto. Sure enough the favorite begins to lug plenty of daylight and

Bees Send Osborne After Reds

Cincinnati, April 30—After getting rained out yesterday, the Bees and Reds will play the second and final game of their first series this afternoon at Crosley Field.

The Bees were bitterly disappointed over the deal the weather man handed them for, from Manager Bill McKelvie down, they felt they were going to hand the Reds another setback.

Manager McKelvie thought that he'd give Wayne Osborne, whom he has on trial from the Mission Club of the Pacific Coast League, another chance to display his wares as a starting twirler.

After getting a more or less sound thumping for the first three innings in Brooklyn last week, Osborne suddenly started to show some major league pitching.

After the game he pitched in Brooklyn, Osborne asserted on the field the next day wearing glasses and admitted that until he joined the Bees he had worn "specks" for a couple of years. He declared this morning that he would have on the "changers" this afternoon and felt that he would have not only more confidence, but better control.

Gene Schott will be on the mound for the Reds and Manager Chuck Dressen expects to excite a lot of fans to even up the series.

The Bees will pull out of here shortly before midnight for Pittsburgh, where Manager Bill McKelvie hopes to make a trade which the Pirates which will add some much needed strength to his ball club.

First Round Finale In W.G.A. Today

By Bill Grimes
After registering four consecutive victories, the Southern District meets the Country Club at the Dedham Country and Polo Club, in the final match of the first round of the annual Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts team match championship.

Southern opened the season with a 7-to-2 win over Midland, thereby starting Mrs. Brad Whittemore's team on its way to four straight defeats.

After disposing of Midland, the Southerners had a narrow escape via Central receiving the award by a one point margin, a 19-hole victory by Mrs. J. D. Woodfin.

In the third round, Northern was outclassed by Southern, the latter aggregation winning 6 to 3 and then on Monday of the week, Southern came through with a 4 to 1 win over Middlesex at Kernwood.

The Country Club is a serious threat to break Southern's winning streak. The Clyde Parkers led the first match of the season to Central by one point and the third round to Middlesex but held decisions over Northern and Midland.

With exceptional strength in the upper third of its line up, The Country Club should receive enough support from its other players to keep the outcome in doubt until the eighth or ninth match results are posted.

The Midland District hopes to break its losing streak today at the expense of Northern, which team it is playing at Kernwood, while Middlesex is set upon retaining at least a share in second place.

Going into the fifth round, which is the halfway mark of the race, Southern is two matches in front of Middlesex, Northern, The Country Club and Central, which are in a four-cornered second place tie.

Cascarella Starts For Red Sox

By Joe Cashman
Those rich, rollicking Red Sox are blithely singing "Alone" from the highest perch in the American League this last day of the first month of the season.

So what's more natural than that they should be relying on Senior Joseph Cascarella, their Philadelphia and ended up in Syracuse.

Our twirling troubadour hasn't yet experienced the joy of retiring a victory this season. He can't be held again him because he hasn't had a real opportunity. He's been used only as a relief pitcher.

He shouldn't, however, let the fact worry him as he makes his first start. Excepting Robert Moses (G.A.), the best Red Sox pitcher for several days have been the new up starter.

In fact, our heroes are on the road today thanks to one of their bullpen brigade.

After Wesley Ferrell and "Fris" Cramer had been swapped around the premises in the mid-week melee, Jimmy Henry from down Memphis way, brought his Real Street ball bat on the scene in the seventh inning and finally Rick Ferrell came through with a single with the sacks loaded in the ninth, which spelled a 6 to 7 win and first place for the Croninners.

Mr. Henry, methinks, will soon be following Mr. Cascarella in relief to regular rank.

The Wednesday match was another hectic heart-walker great enjoyed by close to 10,000 customers. That is, it was enjoyed when it was all over. There was plenty of moaning from the stands at intervals during the pastime.

With Ferrell sporting a 6 to 2 lead over Vernon Kennedy, going into the seventh all seemed well, but appearances quickly proved him 1935 career. He started off in "most deceiving" crooning curve, to keep them at the proper pitch during the third and final baseball opera with the White Sox from Chicago at the Fens this p. m.

Round Jimmy Dykes couldn't quite make up his mind who would fill the mound role for the visitors. He said it would be either Johnny Whitehead or Teddy Lyons.

Senior Joseph remarked that he wasn't interested in that part of it. "I'll chase whoever is sent against me right off the stage at pitching, awfully, marbles or tide-windies," sneeringly crowned the Soxer.

You can have no doubt that Joseph at least hopes to make good his boast if you are acquainted with his 1935 career. He started off in "most deceiving"

TALENTED STAGE TRIO JOIN 'PINK' PARADE

LeROY, Bordoni at DINNER

JOE MORRISON ACCEPTS, TOO

Three talented stage stars today joined the parade to Club Mayfair for next Monday night, when the Boston American Night Pink dinner will be staged.

The trio are Irene Bordoni, international Parian star; Hal LeRoy, young dancer who is ranked with the best in his line, and Joe Morrison, stage and screen singing standout. All three are here headlining the show at the RKO Boston theatre.

The Night Pink dinner at the Mayfair on Monday night is being staged to honor the edition of the Evening American which prints the news the same day it happens and features baseball, football and other sports results.

CURLY THERE

Cov. James M. Cusley heads the list of distinguished guests at the Pink Dinner. Officers are State Treasurer Charles F. Huxley, First Commissioner Edward M. Laughlin, District Attorney William J. Foley, and Park Commissioner William P. Long.

Mickey Albert, Boston star, who has become a famed master of the night club, will extend his stay of this week at Club Mayfair until Monday night to give entertainment at the Pink Parade.

The sports word has many representatives. From the Red Sox will come Manager Joe Cronin, Jimmy Foss, Lefty Grove, Wes Ferrell and Coach Al Rosen. The world champion Tiger has agreed to send Al Simmons, Benjamen Rowe and Hank Greenberg, and Manager Mickey Cochrane will try to attend.

HANLEY, TOO
Pat Hanley, head coach of football at Boston University, Jack Sharkey, former world's heavyweight ring king, who is making a comeback, the Big Three of New England racing—Allan Wilson of Suffolk Downs, Walter O'Hara of Narragansett Park, and Lou Smith of Rockingham Park, are others who will help fete the Night Pink.

Despite the many notables who will attend, and the many features, there is no extra charge at this Mayfair on Monday night. Reservations may be made by phoning Benny Ginsburg at the Mayfair, Liberty 07-00.

With more celebrities joining the Pink Parade each day, the Night Pink dinner will be the most colorful affair of its kind ever staged.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY.

Innocent Bystander

Dorchester Woman's Idle Curiosity Saves a Life

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

There's no getting around it, boys and girls, home is the place where you'll find the most adventures.

I met a guy the other day who had just come from the wild and woolly interior of the Philippines. He's been there for two years, and he left, he said, because things were no dead out there. Nothing ever happened, and he was bored stiff.

But GERTRUDE SHAMLIAN of 29 Stockton street, Dorchester, has better luck in that little matter of adventure hunting. Gertrude stayed home and got into a mess of trouble when she and her husband tried to fix the bathtub drain.

The drain wasn't working right, and Gertrude was having a heck of a time getting the water to run out. It had been growing worse and worse.

One day, all summer and, finally, one day in the fall of 1934, she told her husband that something would have to be done about it.

Gertrude's husband was pretty handy at fixing things around the house. He got a wrench out of the tool kit and went into the bathroom. Gertrude could hear him in there, banging away at the pipes as she went about her work. Pretty soon she heard him calling her and went to see what he wanted.

She found him lying down beside the bathtub. He is a big man, weighing well over two hundred pounds, and the bathroom is small. He had managed to crawl in and get the outlet pipe unscrewed, but he'd done it only after quite a bit of trouble. If he crawled out again he'd have all that work to do over again.

"Gertrude," he said, "I can't see very well down here. Will you get the electric extension cord and bring it to me?"

Gertrude went out to get the cord. She brought it back and went over to the light which hung from a fixture on a side wall over the medicine cabinet. Her husband's body lay across the floor, almost filling the little bathroom. She had to climb over it to get to the lamp.

She took the lamp bulb out of the fixture and screwed one end of the cord and handed it to her husband. He took it, and Gertrude said "Be careful with that." Then she climbed back over him and stood in the doorway.

There's something in all of us that makes us sort of hanker to stand and watch other people work. The birds who hang around craning their necks at a bunch of men running a steam-shovel down in a building excavation have become a classic joke among Americans. But Gertrude doesn't think there's anything funny about it. That impulse that led her to pause a minute and watch her husband struggle with the clogged drain pipe—that impulse probably saved her husband's life.

He hadn't answered when Gertrude told him to be careful, but she thought nothing of that. What did seem strange to her was that after she had handed him the cord he had not moved. She spoke again: "Are you all right?" Still no answer.

Then, suddenly, it dawned on Gertrude that something terrible had happened. She stood on tiptoe and craned her neck to look down behind the bathtub. One glance confirmed her suspicion. He had one hand on the metal of the extension cord, up close to the light and the other was clutching convulsively at a piece of galvanized iron pipe. There was a short circuit in the electric cord. The current was passing through his body.

"He couldn't move," says Gertrude, "and neither could I for a moment. Fright held me motionless as the current was holding him. From where I was standing I couldn't reach the switch that would turn off the current—I couldn't, that it, without crawling over his body, and I knew that if I touched him the current would go through me, too, and make me as stiff and motionless as he was himself."

Gertrude knew that mustn't happen. With both of them down there on the floor, caught in the grip of that old demon, electricity, they might stay there for hours—even days—before anyone found them. She had to do something.

I wish you could see the page from Gertrude's letter at this point. The script gets all wobbly and there's a stain at the top that says:

"Please excuse the writing. My hand is shaking just from the memory of it!"

Then I found that she stood there trying to make out her mind was "the worst Gertrude ever experienced. There was no time to run for help. She had to work quickly, for if she didn't her husband might die. And if she didn't do it, she would run the risk of falling into the same trap as she had caught him. Then BOTH OF THEM might die."

In the end it was her that settled the issue. Gertrude just couldn't stand still any longer. She gave a convulsive leap that carried her clean over her husband's body and half way across the bathroom floor. Her hand reached out, caught the button, twisted it. Her husband let go of the iron pipe and arched once, loudly. Then he lay still again.

Gertrude bathed his face with cold water. She rubbed his arms and legs. At last he came to. He was stiff from the rest of the day, but the next morning he was all right again.

"He might not have been, though," says Gertrude, "if I hadn't been right there watching him when it happened."

Thousands of people must be having adventures just like Gertrude's every day in the world. Everybody's home has in it the makings of a hundred like adventures. You bet! Two birds that you have had one. Send me a good, little letter about it. Remember, I may pay you ten for your story, if it's published.

Floyd Gibbons will pay good money for good TRUE adventure stories. Hundreds of people in Boston and nearby towns have received ten-dollar and hundred-dollar bills for their yarns, and there's no reason why you can't do the same, for, as Lloyd says, everybody has had at least one adventure. Fred A. Carlson of 57 Deaconess road, Boston, won a hundred and ten dollars for the story of his life's biggest moment, and you can do the same.
